

fps streams and DVR, with a redesign that meant users wouldn't have to schedule a live event ahead of time.

YouTube Kids provides a safer version of the website consisting of children's videos and new content in a way that is easier for children to use, and their parents to regulate. Features include an ability to turn search on and off, as well as a dedicated parental settings tab that allows for total regulation of the content being made available. If a user wants to use YouTube Kids ad free, they are allowed to couple it with YouTube Red.

YouTube Go is the newest app in this featured list, and it is made for offline viewing and sharing. It allows for content to be downloaded in all the available quality, as well as a steady stream of personalised videos to watch. This content can be watched anytime and anywhere without the need for an internet connection. It also allows offline content sharing between devices in the vicinity without any need for internet access.

Is YouTube profitable? Surely...

Well, the short answer is no. The long answer is still no, but there is a caveat. In 2015 it had over 1 billion active users, and yet continued to be unprofitable. Wall Street Journal reported that even as recent as 2013, YouTube was unable to break even. With Google's video unit posting a $4 billion revenue in 2014, up from $3 billion in 2013, it barely broke even. Even though it

Such an interface has all the elements of a children's park - the colours, the 'teachable moments', and the parental supervision that is required for a healthy learning environment.