How does this vast tech ecosystem treat its developers?

The ecosystem of software development is the most vast and rapidly expanding system of connected components that exist on Earth today. There are an estimated 4 billion users of the internet alone, who are connected to this ecosystem and benefit from it. This number is doubling every 2 years. It is thus of paramount importance that the process of developing software also adapts to this exponential pace in a disruptive manner or risk stagnation. This is what the Google developers ecosystem hopes to achieve.

With a product base in dozens of developer tools & products, it is the largest software development platform in the world today, offering every-
