

The best way to write a blog post is to divide the article into more than two sub headings for easy readability. Moreover, you should mark few important keywords in bold format. If you are running a technology blog, you should also try to create comparison stories, product and app reviews. The success of a blog largely depends upon the content you publish. We highly recommend you to provide the source of your story below the article if you are planning to get the site listed on Google News.

Analyze the top trending articles which is creating a buzz

Creation of list topics

In addition to normal news, you should also try to create a dedicated blog for list topics, which will have content such as Top five smartphones, Top five songs of Kishore kumar, Popular films of Mohanlal etc. You can earn revenues by inserting relevant ads below each top listing. For instance, you can add affiliate codes of each smartphone from e-commerce retailers or affiliate code from Amazon, which will help you to earn revenue. Initially, you will not see any progress in revenues but if you continue to blog, the overall revenues will grow over a period of time.

Revenue Generation

To earn revenues from your blog, you need to establish a credible base. If you have just launched a blog, then it will take few days or even months for the blog to grow and appear on the major search engines like Google. You should continue to write two or three articles every day for the first three months. Your blog will automatically grow and get noticed by search