

for Google News. You should continue to keep track of the progress from the Google News Publisher Portal.

The big advantage of getting listed on Google News is that you will be noticed by your community. Companies will establish contact with you by sending you press releases.

Blog promotion

Once you have established a blog and started to write 4 to 5 articles every day, you should take some time to promote them. It is advisable to create a separate Facebook page, group, Twitter and Instagram handles for your blog. You should make sure to use relevant hashtag while promoting articles. The unique hashtags such as #mondaymotivation and #fridayfeeling generate plenty of hype among the social media community. If you got a unique image, you can easily share them via Instagram with hashtags #instadaily, #instagood and #instablogger to generate traffic. You will likely receive at least few likes and followers immediately.

To promote your blog content effectively, you can make use of Indiblogger, an exclusively created for bloggers based in India. You can register on the site after publishing few articles on your blog. The team will verify your blog and include them on their database. The IndiRank generated by the site measures the popularity of your blog. Initially, you should not worry about the rank and continue to publish content. The rank will grow automatically after few months. Moreover, the site also runs special campaigns, which will fetch you gifts and prizes. Blogadda is also a blogging curation platform. The site promotes articles published by the members including the ability to win gift vouchers and free books.

If you are running blog on WordPress, then there are several plugins available for automating Facebook and Twitter. You need to install the plugin, generate API keys and configure the settings. The advantage is that the moment your article is published, it will be visible on configured handles without your involvement. You should be careful not to auto post articles in bulk since Twitter will ban Spam accounts. Moreover, you can make use of tools such as Hootsuite.

Tracking

After the creation of the blog, you should keep track of the statistics such as unique visitors, hits, page views and other traffic related parameters. The CPANEL includes tools such as AWStats, which will help you to monitor
