

the trend of visitors globally. Moreover, the metrics section provides few additional tools as well. The best way to monitor the blog usage is to activate Google Analytics (http://dgit.in/goo_analytics) and install a relevant plugin from the dashboard. You will find an option to provide analytics code if you make use of premium themes. Some of the other popular tracking tools are Similarweb, Ahrefs and Clicky.

Blogging for third party sites

If you are unable to spend time to create a blog from scratch, you can work for third-party websites. To locate the sites where you can contribute content, hit Google News and check out the news stories. There are small to medium blogs where you will be able to establish contact and submit content. It depends upon your niche. There are several blogs outside Google news and can be located via searching. Nowadays, all medium-sized blogs are regularly hiring writers. The tech industry for example is so hot that freelance writing jobs are available in plenty. The Facebook groups related to your niche can be an excellent source for finding freelance gigs. If you

Advertise your writing skills and earn via Fiverr navigate to prologger.com/jobs, you will find plenty of writing jobs related to various niches.

Alternatively, you can register on fiverr.com and advertise your profile. You can write content and get paid without any middlemen for the rate you fix. If you can perfectly write and deliver content promptly, you will get plenty of positive feedback from the customers, which will increase the chances of getting more work. The earning potential is based upon your rate, quality and feedback.