

Freelancing pitfalls

Everything is not all hunky dory and a bed of roses. Understand the flip side of the coin too before taking the plunge

While in the yesteryears it was considered an absolute necessity to have a good 9 to 5 job under your belt to be 'financially secure', things are fast changing. Gone are the days when having a government job or a corporate job with one of those large multinationals is what puts you in front of the rat race. The new era has ushered in an increase in the number of 'gig employment' opportunities. People are increasingly leaning towards the life of freelancing and contractual jobs.
