Grocery sales are on the upward trajectory online.

Between 2016 and 2022, the online grocery market is estimated to grow at a compounded annual rate of 62 percent. At present, the total size of India's grocery market is more than $ 360 billion. This makes the country the sixth biggest grocery market in the entire world.

Health & Beauty products – Quite a healthy market size

It's estimated that by 2020, the market will hit the $ 1 trillion mark.

Health and nutrition products form a great entry point into the online grocery market. Shopping online is the norm these days and is more feasible than physically going to a store, especially to purchase such relatively low ticket items.

Jewellery

Online jewellery sales in India has come of age. Reports suggest that one piece of jewellery is sold on an e-commerce site in India every five minutes.

Websites like bluestone.com, cilori.com and craftsvilla.com have all led the way in this category. The ease of going through exhaustive catalogues online is the main reason customers prefer online buying for jewellery.

So, the design and interactivity of the website should be a priority if you choose this category.

Niche categories

Niche products are traditionally associated with higher risks. That needn't be the case online, for on the internet, every product has its audience.

Also, thanks to targeted marketing that's possible with big data, you have the means to take your business to the right kind of audience based on their demographic, taste, geography etc. Getting into the niche categories also afford you a less crowded ground in terms of competition.

However, there are downsides to consider too.

For one thing, you may need to invest quite some time to build the reputation for the products before the customer would be comfortable enough
