

After-sales service

Often more important than what you sell is how you deal with your customers after a sale.

Nowadays, customers carefully verify the nitty-gritty aspects before placing an order via online e-commerce platforms. If you are selling online, then you should know all the relevant concepts associated with after sales service. The main aim of your online business is to retain customers without losing them. If you render excellent after-sales service, your existing customers will recommend you to other prospective customers. The end-result is that you can grow your business across India within a short span of time in the existing
