

them via email or phone to know the reason. This helps retain lost customers as well. If you are selling the item through your own warehouse, you can have a mutual discussion to know the potential problem of the customer. Moreover, if the order is cancelled or returned by the seller, then you will not receive any funds out of the sale. Flipkart doesn't have a very strong returns policy and hence sellers will get profit from each sale.

Amazon

Amazon provides 24 hours customer support via email and live chat. If Mr. Nathan is a buyer, he will either contact the relevant seller by clicking the seller link on the product page. Amazon allows buyers to contact sellers via their own messaging platform. The live chat facility is helpful for buyers to address concerns before making a purchase. However, buyers will contact the respective companies for after sales service. In case a customer establish contact with Amazon, the team provides the required information such as telephone number of the relevant service centre. If the product requires installation such as TVs and other home appliances, customers should establish contact with the manufacturer by calling their toll-free number mentioned on the product page. As a seller, you have a limited role to play unless the product is fulfilled directly by you.

If you wish to sell with the tag “Fulfilled by Amazon”, you will have to handover the items to Amazon and they will stock them on their shelves. If you are shipping the product directly, then you need to handle service properly. Suppose the buyer purchases a smartphone directly from you (seller) and if the device malfunctions, the customer will get in touch with

Transcript of a chat with Amazon team