

with the online system, you can approach tax consultants and companies like Integrated Enterprises. They will provide you with the Form 49 and will assist you. The PAN card will be delivered to your home or office within 15 to 30 days.

Aadhaar

You should provide your Aadhaar number while filing application for the PAN card. Nowadays, people have access to the card and the number. If you don't have one, you can navigate to <http://dgit.in/uidai> and locate the nearest enrolment center. You can even visit the nearest general post office (GPS) to know about the application process. You have to submit a copy of ration card, photographs and also scan the biometrics. The generated Aadhaar card will be delivered to you within 6 months. However, you can download a copy within few days from the website. After the receipt of the Aadhaar card, you can update the details via online based platform. The first thing you need to do after obtaining the Aadhaar card is to link it with your PAN card, which is made compulsory by the Government.

TAN

If you are gearing up to run the business on a large scale, you should obtain Tax Deduction Account Number (TAN), which is a 10-digit alphanumeric number. It is compulsory to mention the TAN number (<http://dgit.in/tin>) on all TDS returns as per Section 203A of the Income Tax Act 1961. If you are currently holding old TAN number, you should request for a new one since the department has changed the policy and implemented unique 10-digit code. If you don't have a TAN number, you can apply via Form 49B. If you would like to modify the TAN number, you need to download a form available on the official website. Basically, TAN number is required for a person who is responsible for tax deduction. You cannot make use of PAN for TAN. However, you should obtain TAN if you are responsible for deducting tax even though you have a PAN, according to the rules.

TAN number should be mentioned on the invoice
