

Collaboration is key

Learn to share your prototype and design with the various stakeholders

Once you have created a design, you need to share it with your collaborators and stakeholders like developers, clients etc.

Sharing with viewers

To share the prototype version, you can create a web link which can be shared. This is the prototype version you are sharing so you need to create the wireframes for it to work effectively. The design will look and flow like you intend it to based on the design specs. You can also publish only a subset of the design. E.g if you want to share only iOS based artboards, select the homescreen of that design and publish it. All artboards connected with the Home artboard are included in the prototype.
