

quickly. These extensions help you auto-fill details and payment methods as quickly as possible. The AutoBuy and FlashSale Tricks extensions on the Chrome browser lets you buy products with just one click when set up well in advance. On Mozilla Firefox browser, FlashSale Wala is the extension to install to make easy flash sale purchases. You can find product specific flash sale extensions as well if you search for it.

Extensions make purchases a breeze as no other details have to be entered when buying a product. They can store your address, payment details and other prerequisites well in advance so that when the sale is ready, one click is all it takes to go to the payment verification page (in case of COD, don't bother).

Even with all these preparations, you might end up not getting the product on your first try. Not getting frustrated might not be an option for many but please vent your frustration peacefully and only at the flash sale organiser. Then, get in line and wait for the next sale, the experience from the first would certainly help on the next.

Using extensions during flash sales can make purchases quicker

Most products sold through flash sales mostly ends up being sold on an open sale once the hype dies down and there is nothing more the company can do to promote the product.

Customers can wait until products are put on open sale if you never get lucky enough to get one through a flash sale or if you don't want to go through with all the hassles of a flash sale. Most times, products on flash sale are new products and wouldn't have much user reviews anywhere.