

The CouponDunia shopping assistant

the code and use it. To use the offers, scratch cards and cash back, you will need to sign up for an account with CouponDunia. However, for using the coupon codes, signing up is not required, and the coupons can be obtained directly. Now, signing up is a good idea, as the discounts are quite steep at times, and can be as much as 80 percent. Some of the offers stack with other offers, while some cannot be used in combination. CouponDunia also has a browser extension for Chrome. The extension sends you alerts about cashback offers and coupons, as well as performs the tracking necessary for the cashback schemes.

Flash sale extensions

There are some specific browser extensions and sites out there that will let you buy some phones in flash sales. The devices that can be purchased through this method include RealMe 2, Moto One Power, Redmi 6 Pro, Nokia 6.1 plus, Poco F1 and Mi TV 4 Pro. Now, although they do work, they are a security concern as it requires you to put in a lot of your information, which, as you must already know, is not entirely a safe thing to do over the internet. In the eventuality of a flash sale, the device is purchased automatically, and the amount debited from your account through BHIM/UPI. We are not naming the browser extensions here as we consider them to be pretty risky, but they should not be difficult to find if you know what you are looking for. The extensions typically offer other features such as price history, comparisons, and will also find and apply coupon codes, where applicable.
