

Hardware and Software

In the pursuit of creating the best deep learning algorithm or model, users often forget about the one thing that makes or breaks their entire experience- the machines and tools. Instead of directly believing that all are the same, let's review and compare some of the most common ones in the industry.