

Adding Text

When you want to include text, a line will show up on the picture with DOUBLE TAP HERE TO CHANGE TEXT. Before you change the content, you have to choose the style of content to be used initially. To do this, tap the symbol in the base menu bar that is to one side of the check-mark. This will uncover the diverse styles of content articles you can include. Swipe to one side until the point that you discover the style you like.

Now, you have to move the text element to where you need it on the picture and resize it. You can resize and turn the component with a standard two-finger pinch/zoom move (pivoting and rotation are taken care of through two-finger bending). Moving is straightforward; you tap and hold the component and drag it to where you need. When you have placed it where required, you would then be able to double tap on the component and afterwards type the content you need. At the point when completed with the process of composing, tap OK, and the content will change.

Text that automatically adjusts size based on word count

Exposure

One of the initial phases in altering is to fix the exposure. Exposure alludes to how bright or dim is the photograph. So if the photograph is on the darker side, you may need to increase the exposure and the other way around. Make a point not to excessively increase the exposure as it might leave your photographs excessively bright and overexposed, making it difficult to focus on the subject matter of the picture.

Healing

Healing refers to correction of the picture for optimum results through a set of methods like object omission, blemish removal and recuperation. It endeavours to use material encompassing a brushed region to correct blemishes and flaws – be they slight damage to a photograph or spots on the