

CHAPTER #06

Formatting Data

Formatting is a premier way to showcase data in a unique light. As numbers can only tell you so much, formatting allows you to express visual differentiation.

Formatting is a key area within the Excel domain. If you're trying to uncover insights or define new parameters within lines of code, formatting helps you organise and move around your data as and when you require. It also allows you to focus on critical areas that need to be highlighted.

When it comes to formatting, there are various tools that users must master. Since formatting reveals pictures behind the data, it is important