

installing an operating system, to loading times of applications, games and other programs. Retrieval of cached information is quicker. If you happen to be content creator and your job profile requires you to work with videos, then you'll notice massive performance gains since the process of video editing involves a frequently read/write operations with uncompressed data. In case of blender or any other software which involves composting, high read/write speed of SSDs will give the user an appreciable performance boost as compositing involves working with sequence of images with uncompressed data.