

tool. It has combined components of project management, sales and marketing automation. The novice users find it user friendly as it is very simple to understand and deploy.

Why you must get it:

Multiple benefits have been found in using Zurmo. It provides any time access, from anywhere at all. If people try to make business out of this, it provides a clean chart of business lead and allows the users to make use of those leads to convert as possible business outcomes. Customers and business prospects have active interaction through this platform. The sales cycle process is completely automated, which in turn generates the market analysis and performance of the business month by month. After using this software, the business is able to identify the developed communication process internally. As a potential business platform, it helps the user send mails in bulk, tracks deals and sales, enhance the future campaigns as well.

openCRX

Brief Description:

If you are looking for an open platform which meets all the organisation needs, then using openCRX is a good option. This works as a multifunctional process which works in coordination with sales generation, fulfilment, marketing and activities related to customers, suppliers and