

tion, instead of posts, and so it is very effective in the businesses which rely upon visual tools for propagation; like art, food, beauty, and retail.

Since Instagram is still a growing platform, the population is far less than Facebook and hence can be put to constructive use in expanding business by reaching out to a newer audience.

Twitter

One of the most effective social platforms, where branding, building awareness around a brand and pushing it can be done convincingly is Twitter. Twitter uses the hashtag to organise and optimise conversations around a word or a phrase. Twitter also introduced the concept of trending topics. Hence, by searching for related hashtags, it is easy to get insights about the top trending products, brands, services and the like.

YouTube

The best thing about YouTube is the metric that enumerates the YouTube users actually undermines its reach to a huge extent. This is because a person does not need to sign up as a YouTube user to view content on YouTube
