

uploader. This is done through an attached software or app. Reposting a post happens when you want to promote another Instagram user, or you want to share a posted idea, concept, or post with your followers to increase more profile visits. You also repost when you want your followers to share and partake in a campaign—by reposting posts requesting an action or a cause, you are actively encouraging your followers to do the same.

Utilising the shopping feature

The shopping feature gives your profile a network of online stores, where you buy and sell for your brand. You can either share products through posts and stories, or you can have people searching for key products in search-and explore-tabs. The post of the product that you aim to promote shopping consists of image or video, along with the description, costs and links to the website. It is important to make your profile a business account in order to utilise the shopping feature. You can follow the same procedure to look at shopping products in order to purchase. Big brands and individuals use this feature to reach out to Instagram users with their brands.

There are important requirements for using the shopping feature, for the sake of both the buyers and the sellers. Privacy, security, smooth transactions and legalities are the reasons why the shopping feature involves requirements—compliance with mercantile arrangements and trade controls, possession of a productive and active business account on Instagram along with linked alternate accounts and connected Facebook pages for credentials and backups, sale of available physical assets and reliable operations, and a link to the catalogue of alternative and available options of products or services. In order to register through proper channels, your account has to be submitted for review to the Instagram.

Shopping through Instagram has to be a reliable and trustworthy process, complete with product details and button links and posting of honest reviews on the connected Facebook page and website. The experience of shopping has to be open, accessible and easy to handle.

Instagram shopping feature