

the quality of the content is top-notch. Therefore in the context of the FB organic marketing, less is more. You need to opt for a strategy related to segmenting the organic content based on interest in the news feed to drive more traffic. Also, remember that you cannot expect to witness a massive change overnight just by posting any headline. When you think about leveraging the power of FB, you need to integrate a multitude of elements in it. They include Video marketing, email marketing, cold outreach, etc.

- Employ Remarketing to drive traffic: At times, it is in one's best interest to opt for paid advertising to boost FB traffic to a website. The reasons may vary including time crunch, resources crunch, lack of effective strategies related to driving traffic, etc. There are mainly two strategies related to the same.
- Remarketing engaged users: Though it is an effective strategy to deploy, it demands traffic that you are yet to have.
- Using saved audiences to drive fresh traffic: If you aim to opt for this strategy, you always have an option to run a remarketing campaign to induce the users to come back and pay a visit.

Use Facebook Pixel like a pro

Facebook Ads pixel is one of the biggest secrets related to higher conversion of FB Ads. Without using FB pixel, it is difficult for you to get hold of the maximum advantage offered by FB ads. A Pixel is a section of Javascript code that finds its way to the pages of your website. It is meant to enable you to build audiences for your FB ads and optimise and measure them. In simple words, FB pixel is mainly used for the following three functions.

- For remarketing, it builds customised audiences from your business website.
- It optimises ads for conversations.
- It tracks the conversation and attributes them back towards your ads.

To find your FB pixel go to tools in your Ads Manager, select pixels, opt for the 'Setup Pixel' button and finally select 'copy and paste the code'. However, the goal is not accomplished by merely selecting FB Pixel. You need to ensure that it is placed correctly and also working correctly. Besides trying a few tricks related to the same, you may deploy a fantastic tool - Pixel Helper that enables you to validate and also troubleshoot your FB pixels. The best aspect of using FB pixel is that it enables you to create custom retargeting audiences. To track conversions with the FB pixel, there are two ways. One is custom conversion and another is Standard Events.
