

escalate the sales chart through Twitter. All of it depends on marketing strategies. However, there are a few that have outperformed others in this field. Things like mobile phones and coffee found a ready market of enthusiastic individuals on Twitter. Gaming companies have also benefited largely from spending on advertisements on Twitter. In fact, Twitter is also said to have increased the number of television viewers with their TV ad campaigns. Viacom is one of the leading companies that faced positive effects of this campaign after Twitter took to experimenting with this company in this field.

Apart from television companies, some other companies saw an increase in their growth charts after they began advertising on Twitter. Mobile phones

Domino's Pizza are among the many who make use of Twitter for advertising from Samsung US have found a profitable market on Twitter. Nintendo and Amazon are some other brands that did great on this social media platform. Sony, Starbucks, and companies dealing with food products also find a ready market here.

To say the least, Twitter can help companies escalate to great success. However, as has been mentioned already, products are not the only factors that should be kept in mind. A company's willingness to invest in commercials and their marketing strategies play a vital role in such situations.

Building your bio using the right keywords & hashtags

Twitter limits the use of characters and hence, it is important for you to frame your Twitter bio with efficiency. Hashtags are the most helpful in this case.