Organic methods of gaining followers

Twitter, with all its marketing advantages, is still a social media platform that bears all the basic features of the same. This only means that you can easily gain followers organically. The term 'organic' here means without paying any money to target a set of people. This can be done by meticulously practicing the following habits on Twitter.

1. Reply and retweet: Customers in particular, and people at large, like nothing better than interacting with a company of their choice. Replying and retweeting what people wish to talk to you about, makes them feel good about themselves and about you. As a result, they themselves will feel the inclination to recommend you to their friends. Reply to the questions that people ask and comment back. This process, which has also been undertaken by Olay, gets you customers who are genuinely looking to work with you.
2. Good content: Not all content on social media is good. In fact, most of them are not. As has been evident, content is, indeed, the king. It bridges the gap between a company and its customers. Hence, invest in delivering great content constantly. Keep your audience engaged. If this becomes a habit on your end, you will find your audience sticking up for you, even waiting for you to release new works.
3. Hashtags: Hashtags are your secret weapon to generating your audience organically. Keep a sharp eye on the hashtags that are trending. Write about those topics. Use their power to maximize the number of people who visit your account.
4. Influence the influencers: The influencers on Twitter are powerful people. Engaging with them can give you a headstart. Talk to them through messages and mention them on posts. They will, in turn, share your content with their followers, thus increasing traffic for you.
5. Promoting your handle: The most classic and probably the simplest way is to promote your handle. Share it with people who you think will like. Make it public and create an attractive profile that will grab attention. Mention your handle everywhere, starting from your blog to your friends.
