

promoting and advertising the business. So, are you wondering how exactly can you attract the audience to your channel and thereby make the audience gain an insight into your advertisement? You will discover the same in this chapter, where we would talk at length about the different ways of using Google Adwords for promoting YouTube videos. So, here we go.

Primarily, let us talk about what Google Adwords are. Google AdWords are keywords which are used to pull the audience to your website. These keywords are those used and searched the most on Google. These keywords will bring the audience to your videos or website when used on Google's search engine. The same AdWords deem to be useful for integrating videos, too, wherein the users searching for some content relevant to your keywords can land on your YouTube channel.

Create an Adword Campaign

Promoting your YouTube video using Google Adwords can turn out to be extremely useful. It can help grow the visibility of your channel and give the extra momentum to boost the organic search growth.

So, for doing so, you first need to build your AdWords account and the next step is to link the account to the YouTube channel. Here is how you do it.

- Click on the tools, Billing and Setting Icon
- Select the account linked to your channel
- Click on YouTube
- On the left side of the screen, click on create a new AdWords Campaign.
- Click on the + Sign icon and select a new campaign
- Now select the Video option.

Herein select what would be your goal for using the AdWords Campaign, which can be either Brand Awareness and Reach or for Product and Brand consideration. The former would help you reach out to the audience, but the reach won't be much. This is, however, recommended to bloggers who wish to bring in more subscribers and viewers to the site. Selecting the latter, on the other hand, will guarantee that your YouTube channel will appear in the search-results when people are looking for your product.

Once you have selected the option the next step is to create a campaign, set a budget and give the campaign a name. You would be required to set a daily budget which can be anywhere near to $5 in the beginning.

Organizing Ad groups within campaigns

You can create multiple ad groups within a single AdWords campaign and
