

money on, then 85% of teens use YouTube everyday. For Urban kids, Instagram is akin to WhatsApp. The nerdier ones are on Telegram. TikTok grew immensely over these last two years but English-speaking urban youth have moved on from TikTok since the non-English speaking youth and mature folk have hopped onto TikTok. It's only natural, no kid wants to be on the same platform as their relatives. One surprising thing we came to discover was that school kids use Google Docs for casual chats at school because everything else on their phones are rendered non-functional by the school firewall.

So why would marketing be appealing to you? In the same manner as knowing the nuances of Excel helps you utilise it better, knowing the nuances of the different social media platforms and the kind of tools they offer will significantly help you get the message across, no matter what it is. Are you planning on building a startup and creating awareness about it? Do you really want to spend a ridiculous amount of money on an agency when you could get the same impact if you did it all yourself? That's where this FastTrack comes in.

For suggesting topics for future FastTracks or providing feedback for this one, please write to editor@digit.in 