Converting videos to money through TikTok is really easy. It just needs a bit of imagination, scores of creativity and, maybe, a bit of luck. When you get familiar with the basics of the user-friendly tools; making a video in this regard is rather simple on this platform! All you need is good content, and loads of creativity; because if it doesn’t strike a chord, it instantly loses its value. Musical performances whether lip-synced or live, always help you make good money on the platform. TikTok has a policy of paying actual exchange rates on musical videos; streamed through the live.ly. The basic system is simple: TikTok users can buy “coins” using actual money via in-app purchases. These are then used as in-app currencies to fund the TikTok creators. This brings about a good gesture as a small amount is reserved for ‘live’ content. TikTok passes 80% of the amount to the person performing live and helps them build an account to brands. The money may not be much, but gives mirth to the performer who gets hard cash for his efforts.
