

Twitter has everyone except the young audience

“How old are Twitter users? Not very old, it seems. But also not very young. Marketers can bet on finding millennials on the platform, as well as some of the under-50 crowd.” - Hootsuite

“Whether it’s the latest news or the latest meme, Twitter consistently punches above its weight in our cultural consciousness. And it’s an important space for brands to make an impression on potential customers. We’ve gone ahead and compiled all the Twitter statistics that you need to know to market among the microbloggers in 2019.” - Hootsuite

<https://dgit.in/SMM4>

Twitter, although flooded by users, has seen less and less number of younger people. The reason behind this issue is discussed comprehensively in this article.

Instagram

Optimal hashtag usage

“Instead of just tossing dozens of tags on a post and hoping for the best, you need a strategy for how you handle your hashtags. Some brands have it easier on Instagram, while others have to get a little more creative.” - Sprout Social

<https://dgit.in/SMM5>

Hashtags are in trend but one must know how and where to use it. Clustering the post with hashtags does not help much, which is why this article takes the initiative to explain more on the topic.

Utilising the shopping feature

“Shopping on Instagram gives your business an immersive storefront for people to explore your best products. With shopping on Instagram, you can share featured products through your organic posts and Stories, or have people discover your products in Search & Explore.” - Instagram

<https://dgit.in/SMM6>

Instagram has a very interesting shopping feature that can be utilized to the fullest potential. This article explains how.

Instagram Ads

“The easiest way to run ads is by promoting posts that you’ve shared on Instagram. Just select the post that you want to promote, and then track how many people are seeing and interacting with your promoted post by tapping.” - Instagram

<https://dgit.in/SMM7>