

<https://www.arduino.cc/en/Tutorial/barGraph> available online to help you in the process. All you have to do is connect accordingly and watch it work.

One major reason behind using a bar graph display and potentiometer is the visual representation of the scenario. This display can also detect signal strength which is significantly important if you are planning to do some serious programming with Arduino. d