

DIY Raspberry Pi

We illustrate how you can build a functioning desktop app with a Raspberry Pi

Computers aren't just for the geniuses who know how to code these days. Thanks to the consistent reduction in the pricing of components and parts, even school students can assemble a makeshift unit using a few gadgets and ingenuity to create something new and innovative. Let's take a tour of how one can create such a device on a moment's go with zero hassles.