

option to switch to the first-person perspective, as per their liking. As the game progresses, the safe zone decreases in size, the reduced size thereby, increasing the chances of battle confrontations between players.

At the end of every round, players are awarded in-game currencies based on their performance which includes their survival length, the number of players they shot down dead and their level. The players can utilise the currencies to buy their avatars customised clothing and weaponry.

PUBG MOBILE

PlayerUnknown's Battlegrounds (PUBG) is developed and released by PUBG Corporation. Although the game is an online multiplayer battle royale game that tests the survival skills of the players, just like various other games on the list, its popularity speaks for itself.

The game starts with the players on a plane getting dropped down into their chosen play areas. The plane's trajectory across the map requires the players to quickly drop down to their desired site using a parachute. Once on the ground, players can equip themselves with weapons by searching empty houses, buildings, ghost towns and other places to stock up.

Apart from weapons, players can equip themselves with ammo, armour, medicines, and supplements. These items are scattered throughout the region but slightly risk-prone areas are stocked up with better equipment. Apart from that, you can also equip yourself with weapons and equipment from the players you've killed.

As the game progresses, the safe zone begins shrinking down to a random location. If stuck outside the safe area, the health of the player decreases significantly until he dies. This shrinking of the safe zone creates a smaller
