

coins against other opponents and win to double the money. This mode consists of games like Count Up, Cricket and Shanghai. Mind you, it can get pretty competitive out there. The third mode in this game is the Friends Mode. As the name suggests, you can invite your friends and challenge them to a match of 301, Cricket or Count Up to see who is better. The fourth is the Training Mode. It is just to brush up your skills in all types of matches. It trains you in different ways to make your shots more accurate. In some cases, you have to score more than the opposite player and in the other, you have to target only the selected area and shoot nowhere else. The more you win the more coins you get. You can customise your darts with the coins with hundreds of design combinations.

You can also buy high-quality darts and customise whichever you like. Remember, the better equipment you have the better will be your game. This game got us hooked. It's like a stress buster-easy, convenient, satisfying and loads of fun.

Table Tennis Touch

Yet another fun game by Yakuto is Table Tennis Touch. It has a very interactive tutorial for beginners where it teaches the player everything from serving to spin. It teaches all the basic rules. The graphics are really good. Not to forget about the accuracy of the shots which are close to reality.

There are four lessons that pop up when you are getting started. The first is Returns that are basically hitting back the shots coming from bots. The second lesson is Spin. This one is a little tricky to master as those of you who know table tennis would know to spin the ball you have to curve the racket in an angle simultaneously while hitting it. The third lesson, which is probably the most important one, is the Serve. In this tutorial, they don't only teach you how to serve but they make you practice it by hitting the specific areas on the table to up your game. Honestly, it was pretty fun. The fourth lesson is Advanced Serve which is simply a more challenging version. Even the makers know the importance of a perfect serve!

There are several gaming modes too in this game. Even though you need the internet to play it with a random stranger or friends, do not worry if you're in the metro or basement and you don't have access to it. The bots are always available to get you out of your misery. The offline gameplay option is as good and the bots do give you a real challenge. The controls are easy. Table Tennis Touch has intuitive swipe controls which means you don't have to learn it, you only have to practice it. It has high-speed gameplay
