

which makes your brain work quicker. It is pretty easy to get hooked to this game. It's easy and fast making it a perfect game to play while commuting. You won't even realize how time flew by.

I'm Ping Pong King

This game by Orangenose Studio is another master take on Ping Pong. Don't be fooled by the title. This is not your regular Ping Pong. It is a hundred times cuter. It is a minimalistic game but it comes with its own challenges. As for the graphics, they are just straight lines and stick figures. The Ping Pong table is divided into two distinct parts with a simple black line in the middle. Now to play this you need to forget about advanced ping pong skills. All you have to do is hit the ball. It's that simple. Just hit and don't miss them. How to hit it? This game does not have intuitive swipes. There are two big rectangular boxes at the bottom of the screen. They are simply marked L for Left and R for right. Now if the ball comes towards the left you have to press left and same for the right. Trust me, it sounds easy. It even looks uncomplicated. But it gets so confusing for the brain to make a lightning-fast decision as to whether the ball is coming towards the right or left.

The matches are short here. Again, taking up an unconventional approach the makers made each match three points long. All you have to do is score three points and you move to the next level. You don't per se level up in this