

TikTok, your dream of being photographed in the sartorial, and richest of wardrobes would possibly become true. You could earn subscribers or followers in tons and would be on your way to becoming a social media influencer.

These mid-range experience holders in TikTok see the portal as a place which could turn unknown, ordinary people into famous. The whole TikTok industry agrees that TikTok suits kids better than adults. There is a generation gap between those who use TikTok and those who do not. You can be an overnight millionaire if you keep trying to gain expertise on the portal.

A sanguine reaction to posts

It is chaotic, but if you have a sanguine reaction to what you see, and reviews you get, then you can make it big, but kids will be kids. There is a lot of abuse and profanity online, which can be alarming. However, if it is your kid making TikTok videos, then you will have to congratulate the kid and yourself because these videos are not easy to make, especially if the footage garners a fan following for you. The mass media that you are exposed to on TikTok is electrifying.

One who is experienced in social media platforms, especially TikTok would see this platform as no investment and only returns in terms of the knowledge bank that the portal is.

The talent you get to witness, and because it brings out your creative side, your creative juices now have a platform to go wild on. It is a brilliant start-up, and adults into the early 20s – 30s see this as the most influential venture of the Chinese company, Byte Dance.

Experienced 25-year-olds see TikTok as having logic only equivalent to that of a drunk man, and the point is that you do not need your cognitive brain to come with you is when you are making or watching TikTok videos. But, this category of users is also not sure about how to use this app efficiently. These people know TikTok as memes, and content which will become an internet joke, it is cringy content, and a mockery of one user by another user.

Yet, somehow, the whole thing is addictive even for the sceptics. For instance, if you go to the fashion section of TikTok, then TikTok would dress up your photos, and you could be setting fashion goals. The people who have been on TikTok for a while are aware that it is ludicrous content. Still, they understand that all other websites are giving rise to culture