

3. #InMyDenim by GUESS was the pioneer of sorts as in September 2018 GUESS became the first brand in the US to kick off a marketing campaign and that too as an official partner of TikTok. So, whenever the users opened their app, they were directed to the Challenge. The influencers used for this Challenge were Chriss Kerr Rio and Sharla May (of @ourfire) and Madison Willow (of @madison_willow). In this Challenge, the users were asked to pose in their best GUESS denim look with #InMyDenim. Thirty-eight million views and a new audience comprising of millennials ensured the campaign's success.

4. Another example is #catch-theseblessings by DJ Khaled, which used the “duet” feature of the app. In “duet” you can post a video on one half of the screen, and the new user can post his video, alongside, on the other half. So you can see both the videos simultaneously. TikTok's official partner, DJ Khaled posted a video of him saying to someone (not seen in the video) “You’re incredible, You’re No.1, You’re awesome”. Users had to post their reactions alongside him. So the viewer sees the screen split in half. Khaled was praising somebody looking to his right, and the user’s reaction was on the left. The users went all out, posting their reactions to the praise utilising various filters and being witty and humourous.
