

TikTok started in-app ads testing since early 2019. Some popular brands on TikTok are Apple Music, Nike and Fenty Beauty. Marketing campaigns can help build a sustainable revenue model in the coming future. Branding can soon be a high revenue generating avenue for TikTok. Once the brand researches and identifies that the app is a good platform to reach its target audience to run its influencer marketing campaign they can establish contact with TikTok content creators. If the aim of the marketing campaign is increasing brand awareness then link tracking can be placed to analyse the level of influence and optimise the marketing strategy.

Exploring various TikTok advertising tactics can help boost the presence of the brand as well increase the popularity of the platform. The expected end result of advertising on TikTok would be return on investment (ROI) which can be achieved through unique content and actionable results by its audience which could involve them by participating in the hashtag challenges or purchasing the product.

Google has been among the first brands to engage and influence customers using this platform. The added advantage of influencer marketing is TikTok's short form video creation feature with 15 seconds video clips and 60 seconds stories which help faster customer engagement for its teenage audience as compared to Youtube which typically works on long-form videos. This feature has also helped TikTok to achieve higher churn rate of videos compared to Youtube. Audience analysis differentiates both these content sharing platforms giving an edge to TikTok.

The most popular TikTok influencer and engagement campaigns are as follows:

- Hashtag Challenges have improved user engagement rate by engaging users to perform the challenge and their efforts to make the videos go viral. The challenge is forwarded to friends and family which causes ripple effect of increased popularity of the app. Haribo Challenge, Fake Travel Challenge and Raindrop Challenge have started the trend of influencer marketing.
- # For You Page – Users can discover the most trending videos based on the feeds generated through cutting edge algorithms which perform predictable analysis.
- Memes – TikTok content has more number of memes as compared to other content sharing platforms. These memes have high engagement rate and aimed to provide a message with humour.
- Duet – This feature allows users to create one video along with another