

Work on followers' engagement

Research? Check! Creative useful content? Check! Collaborations? Check! Consistency? Check!

We are sure you have a large audience waiting for your freshly brewed content now. You are halfway there, my friend! By the way, TikTok provides more impressions on the video that has better engagement. It is to take your engagement numbers high, so that your marketing game can reach the next level. Here are some ways you can ensure that your client follows you regularly and gives you business eventually!

Provide a choice in videos

Your sole purpose is to increase engagement. Giving them options to choose from is one way to get their responses. Once they reply to your options, you have them engaged. You can either talk about a controversial topic in the news or your general life; anything will work depending on the fun factor and relevance attached to it.

Also, when your audience replies to your situation, you need to know that some of them may have the opposite opinion. You cannot expect all of them to understand your point of view. Hence, you need to focus on just the positives— the engagement. Rather than focusing on the debate or argument, you need to discuss the issue with a moderate point of view and make them understand and not anger your audience.
