

Question videos

In life, what do you do when you need someone to show concern or pay attention? You ask them a question that concerns you. If the person responds, they are engaging with you. Sounds simple?

Well, then this is what you should do on TikTok as well. Ask your followers/audience/online family questions and they will respond. The more replies you get, the more engagement, more love, the better the quality of audience you will receive. This will get you a higher number of views on the content you post in the future. The only condition is to ask them open-ended questions regularly.

Engage Other Brands

Once you reach out to brands and engage with them, you make them realize your existence and reaching the other end is necessary for your growth. These brands then take your name to places you can't reach otherwise.

Traffic generated by these brands might get you some sales. Another point to keep in mind is to promote a brand quite subtly. The audience knows that you are using a brand to get reach and you don't want to rub this fact in their face. Hence, plug in your promotions with thought and sophistication, don't be glaringly obvious about it.

Post during peak hours

When you go through the insights of your profile, you will understand the pattern of your audience and when they have leisure time. There is one specific time your audience loves to be online and that is the time you should be posting to get more likes and comments on your videos. If you post during peak hours, you will attract
