

Mozilla Firefox

Learn more about one of the most popular web browsers out there

Introduction

The internet is one of those things that has made life so much better for all of us. Much of our technological advancement started with the development of this network that now connects billions of computers all over the world.

However, the internet took a considerable amount of time to come within the reach of the common masses. It started with basic dial-up internet where the connection had to be requested. Today, however, it is right there at our fingertips. There were many factors that influenced this massive turn around of events. One of the main factors was the development of more and more coding languages. Although we will not dig deeper into that subject, we must understand that owing to these codes, we have today what we call web browsers.