Learn how to use custom scripts to make your own games from scratch

In this chapter, we will be going for some non violent games. The first one is a racing title where you will have to go as fast as possible around a race track. This game also introduces the concept of custom scripts, which you will need to do a lot more of if you start making your own games from scratch. After that, we will be making a rescue mission game, which demonstrates the concept of picking up objects.

A space racing game

For this game, we will be going back to the starting point and using the base scene that we created. This is because, for this particular game, we actually
