

- I. Both smartwatches and fitness bands can endure moisture that is useful to clean the face of the watch and the band with a lint-free cloth and a bit of water.
- II. To clean the strap, first, remove the dial of the watch and the tracker from the strap.
- III. If your strap is made up of rubber, rinse it only with water or wipe it down using a small amount of rubbing alcohol. For people who apply sunscreen lotion or moisturizing with the smart band or watch, a gentle skin cleanser, like Cetaphil, can be used on the strap to remove the marks.
- IV. For metal, leather, and nylon strap smartwatches or bands, cleaning the strap with a lint-free cloth with a small amount of water (only in case of necessity) is the best cleaning option. But, nylon straps can be smelly as they quickly grab sweat. Because of this, if the nylon strap is stained, wash the strap with a solution made by mixing a little dish soap and warm water, followed by plain water.
- V. Till the time the strap is completely dry do not put back the dial or the tracker on it.

If you start cleaning your gadgets on a regular basis, especially the ones that you use daily, it not only improves your gadgets' life and performance, but yours as well. d
