

his/her email archive and retrieve the email in question, without running to IT with requests considered trivial.

- User Monitoring

User monitoring is a feature of email archiving systems that are regularly used in large companies.

Email archiving systems can help companies make employees abide by their code of ethics. In case an employee's work email is being used for conversations that do not involve business, the human resources representative can be alerted through the monitoring of certain keywords. This can help efficiently single out employees involved in misconduct.

Several unethical workplace issues can be detected with the help of user monitoring using email archiving systems.

- Information Requests

This domain is also highly dependent on the field you work in. In highly regulated industries such as financial services, healthcare and government services, information requests can be a regular part of your job. A number of regulations make it easy for governments or agencies to request data from your firm, and it is often mandatory to comply with these requests.

Data can be in any form and is very regular in the form of emails and data shared among employees. Email archiving systems help a firm retrieve this data and share it safely with the authorities.
