

The ‘IT Guy’ graduation manual

It didn't take us long to come out with another “How to” guide since you folks asked us all too kindly. And we've listened to your feedback and focused on these additional topics which are somewhat in the IT side of things and somewhat part of your daily life and not that tech-centric. So you're still the “IT Guy” in training and this would be an obstacle course you'd need to finish in order to graduate. We know it's a tacky way of putting things but that's what we're going for.

In this month's FastTrack or the “How-to-Guide” we're focusing on some of the burning but simple questions that you folks had such as how you can screenshot an entire page on every single popular platform including video game consoles. We've also covered how you can make use of your game controllers with your phones in order to get an edge over the competition. Some might call this cheating so try not to overdo it, you could get placed in a different pool of players for using additional accessories in certain mobile games. Coming to the everyday problems, we've put down how you can make payments online using UPI in the safest manner and also how you can manage your road tolls without using paper money. We're still far from hitting the peak of the pandemic here in India and these additional guides might help you emerge unscathed from it all.
