

In addition to this, there are several gamers all around the world that stream and record their speedruns, which means to show you how fast they can beat a game that took hours to defeat by a regular gamer. You don't have to feel ashamed seeing these guys complaining that Darksouls runs in just 29 minutes, which took you 40 hours to complete.

If you think you can become a master speed runner too, or you simply just want to show off your gaming skills, you can do it by recording your gameplay! You never know, you could actually record a gameplay that starts trending and then you could become one of the big shots on streaming services!

Source: <https://www.lifewire.com/f>

How to Record Gameplay Step by Step

In our tutorial, we are going to use Fraps video recorder, but you can use any of the tools which we have listed in this article. Fraps is your good old pal for many gamers, you might not remember the name, but we are sure you remember the FPS numbers that come on top right or left corner of the screen when you are playing a game. So, let's get into how you can record your gameplay using Fraps.

- Step - 1: First, you need to go to the official website of the software to download it; once your download is complete, start the setup and install it in your windows. Now, close the setup and run the Fraps.exe file, which you will find on your computer's home screen.