

Windows 10 Game Bar

If you have Windows 10, you don't need to install any third-party software to record gameplay. Windows comes with its screen recording software called Game Bar. It's a great tool to record videos in good quality. But, you can't do much with it as it comes with a limited amount of features.

Frequently Asked Questions

1. Do I need to have a costly gaming machine to record my gameplay videos?

Well, the answer is no, you don't need to have a massive gaming system; people record their gameplays even on laptops, tablets, and on a mobile phone, too. The quality of a video does matter. There's no doubt about it, but it all comes down to your content. Don't overthink the recording. Focus on providing the quality content to your viewers, which makes them come back to your channel to see more of it.

2. What is the best resolution to record a gameplay video?

A lot of people might tell you to go all the way up to 4k, but to be honest, that's not where the sweet spot lies. Not many people have 4k screens to see your videos in the best quality. So, as of now, you should stick with 1080p or 720p anything above 480p is considered watchable.

The Final Knock Out

When we had Pac Man in gaming machines in the arcade, you can see an