

- Git and GitHub - Git and Github are used for version control and software development hosting respectively. Get better at using git by reading these articles, <https://dgit.in/gitgood> and <https://dgit.in/gitlab>. Github is a crucial part of the software development process and having a good knowledge of Github is very much required. You can refer to <https://dgit.in/gitbelp> to know the tips and tricks to get the most out of Github.
- BitBucket - BitBucket is also a part of Atlassian and is used for version control and repository hosting.
- AWS - AWS is a part of Amazon and is used as a cloud platform and cloud computing services on-demand. Getting better at AWS requires increased practical experience. You can learn by doing projects on AWS either by yourself or by doing a course on AWS.
- Azure - Azure is a cloud computing service provided by Microsoft. Get better at Azure by reading this article <https://dgit.in/azuretat>.
- Docker - Docker is a set of products used for software containerization and makes it possible to deliver software as packages. Get a better understanding of using Docker at <https://dgit.in/dockertat>.
- LXD - LXD is a system container manager provided by Linux, that is used for providing virtual machine experience using Linux containers. Learn more about LXD by reading their official documentation at <https://dgit.in/lxd>.
- Jenkins - Jenkins is an automation server that provides a facility to build, test and deploy their software around the world. Use Jenkins in a better way by following the steps mentioned at <https://dgit.in/taboolajenkins>. You can also visit <https://dgit.in/jenktut> for other resources.
- Puppet - Puppet is a configuration management tool written in Ruby programming language. It is used to deploy, manage and configure the servers. You can visit the official youtube channel of Puppet at <https://dgit.in/ypuppet> to learn the tips and tricks to get better at it.
- Chef - Chef is also a configuration management tool and you can get the resources on how to get better at using chef at <https://dgit.in/cheftut>.
- Selenium - Selenium is used by testers to test their web - applications, for automating tests on web-browsers. Visit <https://dgit.in/seleniumtut> to get resources on how to get better at it.
- Kubernetes - Kubernetes is a container-orchestration application tool that is used automating application deployment and management. Get to know about Kubernetes and all the best practices at <https://dgit.in/kubernetes>.