

- Make your characters speak flawlessly

Your animation looks glorious when the object's lip movements complement the audio or voice-over. To attain the utmost accuracy, you can create your artwork for lip-syncing and use the auto lip-syncing feature to create realistically synchronised animation. You can decide the desired sequence of lip images in a layer corresponding to the audio and synchronise both these attributes on the timeline.

- Creating animation for various platforms

Adobe Animate offers a wide range of predefined screen sizes appropriate for a variety of platforms. Choosing the right template, you can create animation for various purposes and share your brand voice. Again, you can try altering the screen size for the same animation video. So, it is easy to spread a word about your brand or share the same animated content across various platforms.

Maintaining the orientation

Setting up the guides and rulers is very crucial to keep the orientation of your animation intact. To enable your rulers, after opening a blank document in Adobe Animate, choose the 'rulers' option from the 'View' menu on the top taskbar. You can then see the rulers with numbers on the scale,

Copyright attribution: <https://www.istockphoto.com>

Rulers for proper orientation of your animation