

audience and what folks like to watch will go a long way towards helping the growth of your channel.

Conclusion

The world of game streaming has become rich and layered. The games do matter, but after a while, the gamers make all the difference. Audio-visual aspects of in-game streaming play a massive role in keeping your audience interested and engaged. You must create a unique style and gaming personality that endears you to your audience. Your character doesn't have to be always what people ask you to be, but an adaptive and flexible one that welcomes changes. 