

League of Legends

frequent updates to the game. Some people stream League of Legends exclusively only and are able to make money from it, but they had to grind to get there, so it's mainly for the game's extreme ones. Or if you have a great on-screen personality, then you can give it a go as well.

Become a Successful Livestreamer

► Basic gaming requirements

Basic requirements for game streaming is not expensive. Here's a simple lister for folks looking to start out.

First and foremost, everyone must have two primary components, a good PC and a good webcam. Without these, streaming is still possible but you won't be able to add much production quality! A good microphone and pair of headphones are also needed. This is not only necessary to capture your audio for the audience but also for ingame communication in multiplayer video games.

Now, the question is, where can I find these components? If you haven't read the previous FastTrack, then you should. We've listed the popular gaming gear and where you can procure each one of them. There's always Amazon.in at the end of the day.

Lastly, you need a good internet connection. Games are massive in size and most platforms require 6-8 MBps minimum upload speeds for 1080p streams. So figure out which ISP in your locality offers the best internet plans and opt for one that has good and stable upload speeds that are greater than the platform requirements.