

Copyright: blog.contenttools.com

Engage Your Audience

To keep your audience engaged is the key to effective communication as it takes two to tango!

Keeping the audience's attention is way more complicated than gaining their attention in the first place. There is always a group of people who do not seem to be attentive towards the underlying content. Also, a one-way interaction is possibly the most boring type of live streaming that you can do. It requires lots of discipline and effort to passively make someone remain attentive to the conversations happening in chat. It is a little tricky for the first timers to hold on to the audience's attention for a particular project without interaction. We've