Make them see their interest in what you offer

Strategise to keep your audience engaged

Give an apparent reason for your audience to be interested in your channel and its content. You can give them a reason for which they should keep following you through platform updates. Even for the audiences who do not voluntarily participate at your channel, provide them with a reason and tell them why they should consider the same. For instance, if you are starting a new game then there's potential for a whole new set of viewers to subscribe to you. Hunt down subreddits and forums where the audience for the new game that you're about to stream resides. And put an update over there.

In a Nutshell

Emphasising audience attention is crucial to make an impact on your channel. Your streams should have the potential to pull the audience together, grab their attention, along with providing them interaction and syncing their expectations with your content. You can get this done in several ways and by implementing various strategies simultaneously. The way you are planning the live stream is critical, especially in terms of using the right games and languages that you can use while talking to your audience. It would help if you also ensured that there is adequate time for the interacting on topics that are not directly related to the game but stuff that you are interested in personally. The way you deliver your content across the digital platform essentially develops a bond with your audience.
